The extraordinary ingenuity and artistic casuistry shown in the following article redeems it from the category of those which contain mere vulgar abuse:

[For the Dispatch.] B. F. Bottler.

A knot of gentlemen were the other day discussing the political situation when the or emaciated by disease contracted in the conversation turned upon the probable or- service, are dragging out a miserable existganization of B. F. B. The first suggestion, of course, was that he is an utterly de- need help; and for such objects as these do praved specimen of a man. This idea was, we propose to band ourselves together. This however, abandoned upon the ground of its high obligation and responsibility is upon however bad, who has not some good quali- men in the discharge of so sacred a duty. ties. Then it was suggested that he was a deprayed woman in disguise, it having been demonstrated that an utterly abandoned woman (with all apologies to the fair sex) is the worst of all humans. This was defeated by the simple argument that that class of women always display a certain amount of physical courage, which B. F. B. is entirely without; besides, Providence having never seen fit to create a woman so hideously ugly. The next was more plausible than either-viz., that he was a species of intelligent baboon, or, according to the Darwinian theory, an ape, in the transition state, having acquired the vices of both man and seeming plausibility of this did not save it dozen at the table, and the strange visitor from the fate of the others, no one in the party having ever seen or heard of a crosseyed monkey, ape, baboon, or gorilla. The next venture was that he was the Devil himself in disguise. All who have read Milton fell on this idea at once, tooth and nail, declaring that the Devil did have some noble and maniy qualities, and, moreover, was on one occasion asbamed of himself. At last it was decided, nem. con., that he was a conglomeration, put together by the father of all evil for his own use and benefit. It was specimen of his handiwork with the heart and general disposition of the jackal, which naturalists tell us delights to rob the graves of their dead, (not after the gold in their teeth though), and to hang on the outskirts of credit-mobilier caravans to pick up the little bits of corruption which their more dainty friends have cast aside. The general moral qualities and delicacy of the hog and the brains of the fox, which has just enough to steal without having a sufficient quantity to see that it would do better by being honest-nature being required to furnish a case for this precious mixture did so; but out of pity to her other children stamped the word villain all over it so plainly that he that rucneth may read. As to his voice, that of the vulture was offered as nearest to its accents; but this was rejected, as B. F. B. was never known to be near where any fighting was going on under any pretence whatsoever, so that he could not Then the question arose as to the name that this concection should go by. One suggestion was, "The great moral polecat," which, contain its own offensive odor, but involuntarily gives warning not to approach; another, "A moral corkscrew," which prefers gaining its ends by tortious and winding ways rather than going straight and honestly at its object. Another argument in favor of the cork-crew proposition was that, like it only succeeds in getting into a bottle.

An Address.

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY OF THE) SURVIVORS ASSOCIATION OF CONFEDERATE SOLDIERS AND SAILORS FOR THE STATE OF GEORGIA. ATLANTA, GA , January 27, 1875.

Confederate States Army and Navy resident in Georgia:

On the 20th January, 1875, there met in Atlanta a large and enthusiastic convention composed of soldiers and sailors of the army D O L L A R S and navy of the Confederate States resident in Georgia. This convention inaugurated an Association, to be called the "Survivors' Association of Confederate Soldiers and Sailors for the State of Georgia."

three-fold: Social, historical, and benevo-

The only qualifications necessary to constitute a man a member are: That he shall have served with fidelity in the army or mayy of the Confederate States, and shall be at the time of signing the roll a bona fide citizen of the State of Georgis, no matter in what State he may have enlisted, or with what command he served; and who shall pay upon signing the roll the sum of twenty-five cents into the common fund of the Association. The constitution provides that ex Confederate soldiers and sailors may form sub-associations in each county, which will be auxiliary, and report to the State organization. The Association elected as its president

General Joseph E. Johnston; General A. R. Lawton, Sr., vice-president; a vice-president from each brigade, and three vice-presidents from the navy; Captain T. L. Massenburg treasurer, and Captain John Milledge secretary ; also, an Executive Committee consisting of Colonel Thomas Hardeman, Colonel James D. Waddell, Colonel L. J. Gleen, Liculenant-Colonel C. C. Kibbee, and Lieutenant-Colonel H. D. Capers. These officers accepted the offices to which they were elected, and entered upon the discharge of their

It is made my duty, as secretary, by order of the Executive Committee at their tirst meeting, held in Atlanta on the 22d day of January, General Lawton presiding, to issue this address, requesting that in each county of this State the ex-Confederate soldiers and sailors will call a meeting and have enrolled all who desire to become members of this Association, and have these rolls, with the money collected on them, forwarded to me by express at Atlanta, Go., on or before the 1st day of June next, in order that these rolls may be verified, the money deposited with the treasurer, and a consolidated roll made up by the next meeting of the Association, in Macon, in October next.

These rolls must show the name, rank, time, place, and command at time of entering the service, and date, command, and rank at time of leaving the service; and in order that these may be uniformly made out I will furnish during the next fourteen days to each ordinary in the State a blank form with the necessary instructions printed therein; and the ordinary will hold them subject to the order of any representative meeting of those to whom this address is directed.

Wherever county sub-associations are formwarded to me as herein directed. And when tickets shall be returned. such associations are formed the secretary of each association will officially report Room 4 its organization to this office, and, if ja 23-sa&Th&w12t possible, send a printed copy of the proceedings of the meeting which formed the association, to be kept on file. And if with zeal? Some of you may attach no importance to the social feature of our Association. Of its historical feature some may say, let the dead past bury its dead; but the benevolent feature, which is the most prominent object of this Association, imposes upon you a solemn duty. There were true and noble men who fell by your side on the battle-field, or languished, until death relieved their agony, in the hospitals; and dying, left widows and orphans who to-day, with no shelter they can call their own, are begging their bread in Georgia. These are your wards. There are others who shared with you the hardships of camp and the dangers of the field, who, disabled by wounds ence, disheartened and weary of life. They

M. THIERS. - [Correspondence New York Tribune.]--Paris, January 10.-M. Thiers yeslerday told me this legend:

John Milledge, Secretary.

When France came into the world as a nation it was in the time of the fairies. As France was to be a great princess, they invited to her cradle all the good fairies-the fairy of wit, of riches, of conquest, of beauty, of grace, and the fairies of harvest and vintage. It was an unparalleled festival throughout the young kingdom; everywhere they danced and drank. But in the very midst of this public rejoicing an uninvited fairy came beast without the virtues of either. The to sit at the banquet. There were already a made the thirteenth. She was not gay like the others; on the contrary, her face was full of meditation, gravity, and sadness.

Every one began to say, " What is she doing here with that unearthly countenance?" She sat down, but she rose with majesty and thus spoke: "You invited all the good fairies to the cradle of France, and you forgot me. Woe be unto you! France shall have days of victory and conquest. She shall be rich in corn and wine. She shall be famous for her wit. She shall beguile the world decided that he had endowed this precious with her grace. But whenever she is about to enjoy her good fortune an unforescen catastrophe shall burl her into the abyss of war or of revolution. And thus I avenged." "Who art thou, then?" they cried out from every side to the avenging fairy. She was already at the door; she turned on the threshold and said, in a tone at once solemn and satirical, "I am Wisdom! France may bave at her cradle all the other good fairies, but as she had not me all the rest will be useless." Thus said Wisdom, and Wisdom is always right. To-day also-but I will not talk poli-

M. Thiers is always the wonderful conversationist whom you know. While the Left Centre revolves around him, continuing in his salons the discussions of Versailles, he escapes from politics by his wonderful fund of talk which has enchanted the diplomatic and literary world. The Duchess Colonna being there with the Princess Troubetzhoi, partake of the nature of that useful bird. the conversation turned upon sculpture. Finally we settled on the carrion-crow. I wish I could stenograph for you all the is certainly a man of learning, but he is also above all a man of the moment. At the tribune he is always eloquent, but as he himself says in all intellectual and artistic work it is only a question of quarter hours. He is very fond of sketches, because they indicate much more than finished pieces the sentiment of the artist and the fire of inspiration. Michael Abgelo in his sketches, just and profound things which M. by a wise provision of Providence, cannot he is also above all a man of the mospiration. Michael Augelo in his sketches, B. F. B., after all its windings and turning, Rembrandt in his etchings, give a brilliant proof of this truth. They seize upon you

> A Dog Story .- Here is a true and curious dog story. The other evening a reporter for the Gaulois was going home late at night, in the midst of most horrible weather, when be overtook a drunken man trying to climb the Rue de Rome. He was followed by a mongrel cur, who kept at his heels and seemed his legs. "Let me alone, will you?" cried

The reporter stopped to see the end of this curious scene. "There, there!" cried the man at length, "I'm going on. You'll tear the breeches off me." He started, and the dog trotted at his heels. After a few yards the desurbard again stopped and the same the breeches off me." He started, and the dog trotted at his heels. After a few yards the drunkard again stopped, and the same scene occurred, the dog growling and snap-ling until his master becam to go farward. ping until his master began to go forward. The reporter went a mile out of his way to see this intelligent dog take his master home, and saw him wag his tail with evident satisfaction as the drunkard reeled over his threshold. — Paris letter—New York Times.
